Mumbai, 13 Nov, 2008

Pharmaceutical and biotechnology major Wockhardt has launched Midazolam injection in the United States. Wockhardt received this approval from the United States Food & Drug Administration (US FDA) for marketing the preservative-free version injections containing 1 mg/ml and 5mg/ml Midazolam, which is used for treating acute insomnia and anxiety. Wockhardt had earlier received the US FDA approval for the injection containing preservatives. Midazolam is the generic name for the brand Versed. According to IMS, the total market for Midazolam injections in the US is $56 million.

“Sterile products continue to be a priority area for Wockhardt in the US” said Wockhardt Chairman Habil Khorakiwala. “This is our fourth injection ANDA approval in the past two months and the twelfth sterile product overall,” he added.
